Walkout Day Perpetrated By Student Body

Opening October Day Taken Exclusively for Play—Trek to Missouri Theater, Then to Country Club

Seven hundred and fifty students and members of the faculty of the College enjoyed the annual Walk-out Day sponsored by the senior class and held last Tuesday, October 1, in the auditorium, at the Missouri theatre, and at the Maryville Country Club.

At approximately 8:30 a. m. last Tuesday morning, the bugle was blown, and straightway the students, and faculty, arose from their seats, and proceeded to "walk out." On the way from the building, the students paused for a short assembly in the auditorium to receive further instructions from his Honor, Luke Palumbo, president of the senior class.

Following the assembly, the upperclassmen walked, and the freshmen marched, to the Missouri Theatre. Before entering the theatre, freshmen entertained the upper classmen from a load of wood parked on Main street. Lester Brewer, football playing freshman from Princeton, sang the melodious "Bear Went Over the Mountain." Mynatt Briedenthal, freshman from Bethany, made the following speech: "I don't know what this is all about, but I hope we get to sit some place besides in the balcony." He then recited the masterpiece of poetry, "Humpty Dumpty." After this, he sang "Nobody Knows," and his finale was presented by "buttoning."

Allen Kelso and Homer Dickerson, both freshmen, then joined in the "buttoning," and later J. C. Flannery and Clarence Starck joined the group.

Verne Campbell, senior, spoke to the freshmen and advised them to wear the green caps, and presented other freshman warnings. Max Keiffer, a freshman, atop the Maryville Power and Light building "picture snatching," was required to "button." Following this, all of the freshman boys were required to "button."

The student body then shoved itself into the Missouri theatre where C. F. Gray, master of ceremonies, required other freshmen to perform. Freshman football warriors were called to the stage and were requested to bow to the audience. Starck, freshman boy, and Florence MacIntosh, freshman girl, were called to the stage and were required to dance before the crowd.

Freshman love affairs were next represented on the stage, and the two pairs were required to dance across the platform and also were required to sing (?). Love affairs represented were those between Jimmy Wells and Virginia Sifers, and Vivian Ross and Charles Wiles.

Thelma Patrick, freshman girl from Bethany who prefers juniors to freshmen, was called to the stage and apologized for not marching with the freshmen. Mary Anne Bovard and Med Majors then sang "Twenty-one Years." Betty Jane Hatfield and Wendell Smith presented a tap dance,

AN ORCHID!

For the most successful Walk-Out Day last Tuesday, an orchid is extended the senior class and all who had part in making the annual day a success. Especially, an orchid is extended to the following Walk-Out Day committees: Program: C. F. Gray, Helen Kramer, Justin O. King, Jean Montgomery, Ford Bradley, Warren Crow; food and serving: Lucy Lloyd, Charlotte Leet, Virginia Coe, Frances Todd, Leona Hazelwood, Harold Person, Orville Johnson, Robert Tracy, Harry Thiesfeld, and Max Seyster.

much to the delight of the audience.

Max Keiffer, freshman boy, and Katherine Thorpe, freshman girl, were required to dance and do acrobatic stunts. Upper classmen then made Max propose to Miss Thorpe.

After the freshman program, an entertaining movie program was presented, and the feature was "Every Night at 8" starring Alice Faye, Patsy Kelly, and George Raft.

The student body and faculty proceeded to the Maryville Country Club and danced until lunch was served. After lunch, the remainder of the day was spent by dancing in the Club house.

Miss Rose Kemmerer, who teaches in the Sanford B. Ladd school in Kansas City, spent last week-end with her niece, Miss Elizabeth Marshall.

Student Body to Be Guests of Faculty

Members of the student body have been invited to a reception to be given them by the faculty, Tuesday evening, October 8, at Residence Hall, from 8 until 10 o'clock. Students will be lead to the receiving line by Dean Miller, president of the Student Senate, and Frances Tolbert, president of Residence Hall.

In the receiving line will be President and Mrs. Uel W. Lamkin, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Miller, Mr. Hugh G. Wales, and Miss Margaret Stephenson. Miss Estelle Bowman and Dr. Ruth Lowry will preside at the table from 8 until 9 o'clock, and Miss Olive S. DeLuce and Dr. Anna Painter from 9 until 10 o'clock.

Freshmen are urged to come during the period from 8 until 9 o'clock and upper-classmen during the 9 to 10 o'clock hour.

Students Have Large Place In District Meets

Organization of District Student Council Association to Be Effected at Teachers Meeting This Month

This year the students of the Northwest Missouri district will have a part in the annual district teachers meeting to be held October 18, at the College. Two representatives, the student president and an underclassman, from each school in the district are to meet and dissemble the proposed constitution of the Northwest Missouri District Student Council Association.

The program will open with a musical ensemble furnished by the department of music of the College. This will be followed by a short talk by Mr. Uel W. Lamkin, president of the College.

In the short business session following President Lamkin's address, officers will be elected. After the officers are elected the College Student Senate will be introduced. The constitution will then be presented by the constitution committee composed of Miss Vivian Ross, Ravenwood; Jack Dudley and Harold Rapp, both of North Kansas City. A round table discussion will follow the presentation of the constitution at which time the representatives can approve or reject any part of the constitution.

Dinner will be served at six, and the high school students will be entertained with selections by the College male quartette and by popular musical selections furnished by a dance orchestra.

After dinner the students will attend the Rockhurst-Maryville Teachers football game. Every high school student in the district is cordially invited to attend the meeting.

Dr. Foster Author of Book About Iraq

"The Making of Modern Iraq" is the title of a new book, written by Dr. Henry A. Foster, of the history department, which was released by the University of Oklahoma.

DR. HENRY A. FOSTER
Author of "The Making of Modern Iraq."

PRESIDENT UEL W. LAMKIN
Principal Speaker at D.S.C.A.

homa Press at Norman, Oklahoma, yesterday.

Professor Foster's study, which deals with the post-war development of Iraq, the Moslem state in North Arabia, is the first book on this phase of Near Eastern history to appear in America. It gives comprehensive record of the steps taken in Iraq's rise to nationhood, from the revolt of the desert tribes under T. E. Lawrence during the World War to the recognition of the country's sovereignty by the League of Nations in 1932.

In the early post-war years, Iraq was threatened, as its not distant neighbor, Ethiopia, is threatened today, by powerful imperialistic interests, seeking territory and trade outlets. As Mr. Foster points out in his book, the country's strategic position in the Tigris-Euphrates valley, its enormous oil area at Mosul, and its important capital city, Baghdad, made it a rich prize for the victors in the war.

Unlike Ethiopia, however, Iraq had the diplomatic interest and assistance of the United States, and due to this country's influence as well as England's interest in the Near East, it became a mandated territory to England under the supervision of the League of Nations.

In Mr. Foster's view, the tutelage of Iraq in self-government, its management by England as "trustee," and its ultimate achievement of sovereignty offer a new departure in world politics, and a challenge to the traditional treatment of minor states in the Near East by major powers.

The author saw overseas service with the American forces during the World War, following which he was a member of the faculty of the A. E. F. university at Beaune, France. He is a graduate of Yale University, and holds degrees also from the University of Chicago and Stanford University. He was a member of the select group for the study of international law under the auspices of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace during the summer of 1935. Since 1925 he has been chairman of the department of social science here.

Laura Phoebe Roseberry and Frances Dougherty spent Sunday with Mrs. E. L. Edwards, at Nebraska City, Nebraska.

Mrs. George R. DePew and Mrs. Ray Walker visited Saturday with their daughters, Dortha DePew and Leona Walker.

Old Grads to Hold Reunion With Teachers

Program for Annual Homecoming Now Nearing Completion By Mr. Wales and the Committee In Charge

Mr. Hugh G. Wales, of the College department of commerce and business administration, announces this week that plans for a gala homecoming of former students to be held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Northwest Missouri Teachers Association, October 16-18, are rapidly taking form. Mr. Wales is chairman of homecoming committee this year, and Mr. Norval Sayler is vice-chairman.

This is the first year in a number of years that homecoming will be presented in the fashion in which it will be presented this year. Plans have been made for house decorations, and special decorations by various organizations.

A homecoming dance will be given on Thursday evening, October 17, beginning at 9:30 o'clock, and everyone is invited to attend, according to Mr. Wales. In connection with the social activities on Thursday evening, a floor show will be presented, and for those who do not care to dance, card playing may be enjoyed.

The Student Senate is making an effort to secure an excellent orchestra for the dance, and the College decoration committee is planning appropriate decorations for the party, according to Mr. Wales.

A booth will be located on the second floor of the Administration building where Alumni may register and purchase tickets for the homecoming celebration on Thursday evening. Mr. Norval Sayler will have charge of ticket sales. Registration will be made by classes in order to give the graduates an opportunity to locate class members.

O'Neillians Meet

The O'Neillians Dramatics Club met Thursday night, September 26, in Social Hall at seven-thirty. The program was in charge of Louise Bauer, newly-elected president of the club.

A program of Dramatic Dancing was presented by Nell Blackwell, Betty Bosch, Leland Thornhill, Frances Feurt, Marjorie Campbell, and Erman Bird. There were approximately sixty-five present.

Tryouts for the one-act play, "Where But In America," to be sponsored by the O'Neillians were held Friday afternoon at four o'clock. Ludmilla Vavra was chosen for the part of the Swedish maid, Hilda; Thelma Patrick, the part of the wife, Mollie; and George Fracker, the part of the husband, Bob.

"Where But In America" is a short comedy centering around the action of the Swedish maid, who is the chief source of excitement around the home of Mollie and Bob. This play will be presented at the next meeting of the O'Neillians Club, October 10.

Around School

Dean Miller must like cherry pie . . . or maybe it is Louise that relishes the concoction of deseeded berries. At any rate, Dean strolled at considerable length over our peaceful city on a Sunday night not long past in search of two fat, juicy, luscious pieces of cherry pie.

Overheard in a freshman's conversation—"I used to be egotistical before I came down here to college . . . but Dr. Dildine took it all out of me . . . And now I'm the best student in his class." The conversationalist was unidentified.

Mr. Siler rated the king row with this jolly little narration before his French class. "A bum came to the house of a lady and entreated her to favor him with a meal. She sent him to the wood-pile to split logs. He was a jolly Irishman—so he sat down by the pile and began telling jokes. One by one the logs split wide open. However, one large, knotty log failed to yield and the hobo explained to the lady that it was impossible to split the one remaining log. In the afternoon of the following day the lady heard an explosion . . . the knotty, English log was just splitting." Mr. Siler failed to say whether his story actually happened or not.

Orville Livingston proved what football training can do for a man. He pounced upon a rat in the library the other morning and expelled him with remarkable agility to the amusement and delight of the ladies.

Jack Alsbaugh and Carlyle Breckenridge speak French with a remarkable degree of fluency. They provoked the ire of one of the stand operators at the carnival by continuous interrogations of this nature in the infernal language: "Has any one ever won a radio at your stand at any time, etc., etc." We're not surprised.

Gerald Mitchell and Leland Thornhill arose early the other Saturday morning to go out and play a few sets of tennis. They went around by their old friend Darryl Waggoner's house to borrow a couple of tennis balls. Gerald and Lee rushed up the stairs to the room they thought Darryl occupied but very much to their surprise they were informed by a charming damsel that this was an approved boarding house for ladies. Apologies were in order. They started down the stairs and encountered the landlady. Apologies were in order again. Once more on the street they recalled without considerable difficulty that their friend Waggoner lived a block further east.

Somebody stole little Gabriel's horn. Not exactly stole—just misplaced. On the morning of walk-out, Mr. Hubert Garrett borrowed Harold Person's locker key for the presumed purpose of opening his own locker. Harold had been delegated to sound the bugle and had left the instrument in his locker. Mr. Garrett cleverly hid the bugle in Mr. Dieterich's office. But Harold still more cleverly secured another instrument and was about to sound it when Mr. Dieterich appeared with Harold's bugle. And the students once again scored one.

Gray is President

C. F. Gray was elected president of the Beta Chapter of Alpha Phi Sigma, national scholastic fraternity, at an organization meeting held Friday evening. Gray, last year's vice-president, presided. Other officers elected were: vice-president, Mary Elizabeth Adams; and secretary-treasurer, Densil Cooper.

Mr. Sayler, mathematics instructor in the College, was elected sponsor of the group. Plans for the coming year were discussed and the group decided to hold an initiation service soon.

Miss Dow Studying for Ph. D. Degree

Miss Blanche Dow, head of the Department of Foreign Languages in the College, is now doing work at Columbia University, New York, toward her Ph. D. degree. The subject of her dissertation is "The Feminine Controversy of the Early Fifteenth Century," a period which covers the waning of feudalism and the birth of the democratic idea.

The subject involves a knowledge of the medieval period and of the early renaissance, and in her research Miss Dow finds it necessary to read in Latin, Italian, Old French and German. One book which she was reading, printed in Old Latin, she later discovered had been written originally in Medieval French and then translated into Latin.

Miss Dow is active in AAUW work and spoke on the subject of International Relations at the national convention of the AAUW in Los Angeles last July. She is present state chairman on International Relations.

Both prose and poetry written by Miss Dow have appeared in current magazines and for the last four or five years her poems have been published in the Catholic World to which she is now a regular contributor.

Her poems "Florence in the Spring" and "War Debt" were reprinted in THE NORTHWEST MISSOURIAN last year.

Besides having been to France, where she studied at the University of Paris, Miss Dow has traveled in Spain, Italy, Germany, England, Switzerland, Holland and Belgium. She has an A. B. from Smith College and an M. A. from Columbia University in New York.

Kathryn Norris, former College student, was a visitor at Residence Hall last week.

Bearcats Will Mix With Eagles Saturday Night

Peru Again Score Victor Over Bearcats

Local Squad Out-Played the Visitors, But Couldn't Negotiate the Score-Counting Goal When In Sight

A team of veteran teachers from Peru, Neb., scored an early victory over the Bearcats when they completed a 25-yard pass in the first quarter of the game last Friday night. The score was 7 to 0 as the visitors converted a place kick for extra point on the second attempt—Maryville being offside when McGinley's first attempt was wide.

O. Pough, Peru's right end, made a difficult catch of the long spiral thrown to him by Story, visiting right half back, between Good and Rulon, when he received the ball over his shoulder in the end zone.

After the Peru team scored, the Bearcats continually out-played the visitors, but were unable to score when within striking distance of the goal. There were also frequent fumbles which at times were costly.

However, the Bearcats showed that a little seasoning and theirs would be one of the good teams that so many have been wishing for for the past several years.

After advancing to the goal line on numerous occasions, the Bearcats became over-anxious to score and in their eagerness either fumbled the ball or were off sides. These mistakes can be remedied, and the only way to do so is to play a few games.

Coach E. A. Davis substituted frequently, trying to find a combination that would work. Men playing guard and tackle positions were substituted frequently.

The lineup and summary:

DOPE BUCKET

By J. O. KING

With Walter Metje scoring two touchdowns, the Cape Girardeau

Teachers opened their football season with a 14 to 0 victory over the Terre Haute, Ind. Teachers last Friday. The Indians also scored a safety. Cape's goal line was only threatened once, late in the game.

Cape plays Carbondale, Ill., teachers today, and I pick Cape as the victor.

Kirksville won their 27th victory last Friday night and that leaves them with only two more to win to tie a national record set some 25 or 30 years ago by Michigan. This time the victim was Carthage College, Carthage, Ill., and the final score was 35 to 0. Away back some three years ago they lost a game, and to the Bearcats, too.

Kirksville plays the big St. Louis U. team today and they must win or their record will be broken. Bet on St. Louis U.

Using an aerial attack, Miami, Okla., Junior College defeated the Springfield Teachers in the opening football game of the season last Friday night, 14 to 13. Failure to kick one of the goals lost Springfield a tie.

Springfield plays the Tahlequah, Okla., Teachers today for its second game of the season. I'll take Tahlequah.

Rolla opens its football season tomorrow with McKendree College of East St. Louis. I'll take Rolla as the winner.

Warrensburg opens its season facing the Missouri University team. Missouri should have very little trouble in disposing of Warrensburg.

Let's all be out and cheer for the Bearcats tomorrow night when they play the Central College Eagles.

KENT TO AIR SCHOOL

B. W. Kent, a former College student of Braddyville, Iowa, reported to the United States Army Air School at Randolph Field, Texas, on September 25. Kent majored in mathematics and physics and received the Bachelor of Arts degree at the end of the 1935 spring quarter. He was a member of Alpha Phi Sigma, national honorary scholastic fraternity, the YMCA, and the Industrial Arts Club. His appointment was the result of his high scholastic standing in the College, his good physical condition, and for his excellent service in Battery C.

Second Non-Conference Game Should Interest Crowd

The Maryville Bearcats return to the gridiron Saturday night to face the Central College Eagles of Fayette, Missouri. The game will be played on the college field and will be under way at eight o'clock. This is the second and last non-conference game for the Bearcats before they are called to meet the Springfield Bears the night of Friday, October the eleventh.

The Bearcats should be considerably stronger than last week when they went down in a 7 to 0 defeat at the hands of the Peru, Nebraska Teachers. Don Francis, letterman end, should be ready to go in this game and will add strength to the end department which did not appear to such a good advantage last week. Jack Claybaugh, 195 pound freshman center and tackle is also in uniform again, but it is very doubtful if he is ready yet. Sorenson, a fullback from Atlantic, Iowa, has enrolled in school, and this 190 pound boy who was rated as one of the best in Iowa last year should be a big help to the team as soon as he rounds into shape and learns the plays.

Melvin Carter, freshman guard and halfback, probably will not see action in Saturday's encounter, as he was kneed in the back and his injury has proven very painful. Carter is one of the few big men Maryville can put in the backfield and he will be missed in this game.

The Bearcats received valuable experience in their defeat of Friday night, and it is to be expected that they will display a very different brand of ball this week. Our line should be able to spend some of the time on the right side this week, and the backfield surely has some of the fumbles out of their system. If the team is able to overcome these two glaring faults and add a little polish to their blocking, the team will certainly show a good game.

Coach Clingpeel at Central faced much the same situation at his school that Coaches Davis and Stalcup faced here. He had only seven or eight lettermen returning, had several unlettered veterans, and many promising new men. His team, as ours, will be slow in rounding into form, but this veteran and wily coach will send a well-trained aggregation against the Bearcats. Central will miss in particular the services of Todd at tackle and Adair at center, two all-conference men who are not returning.

Last week, Central lost its opening ball game to Missouri Valley by a score of 20 to 17. This game was played to test some proposed new rules. Missouri Valley scored two touchdowns to Central's one. It is reported, however, that Central played well against an experienced foe.

Maryville and Central have been rivals on the gridiron at infrequent intervals. The last game was played in 1929 and the Eagles emerged a 13 to 0 victor. So in reality, the Bearcats should be seeking revenge.

It is probable that Maryville will start the same team that started last Friday against Peru. While little is known of the Central lineup, Maryville will probably outweigh the Eagles several pounds to the man. The game should be well played and interesting and should furnish a basis for the comparison of the MIAA and the MCAU brand of football. Come out and help the Bearcats win.

Richmond, of Maryville; and Joe Hunt, of Redding, Iowa.

Campbell was a yell leader last year, and because of excellent service, students elected him again this year.

Richmond, a junior in the College, has had experience as yell leader at Maryville high school.

Where the Pep?

How would you describe the pep at the last College football game? Offhand we would say it was terrible, but our opinions do not rate, so we interviewed several men and women that are prominent on the campus, and asked them the same question. Their answers? Well here are a few:

"There wasn't any pep to observe, I therefore can't describe it." —Ford Bradley

"The pep organizations were conspicuous by their lack of pep," Frances Feurt.

"It was practically nil," Louise Bauer.

"I will not say! I would not like what I would say to be quoted," Bud Green, Dean Miller, and R. T. Sidener.

"Punk! Rotten! Terrible! In fact Lousy!" Derotha Davis.

"I can't. There wasn't any," Bobby Paul.

When first approached Neil and Wilson blared out in unison, "Rotten!" Then they prepared this statement. "The student body lacked cooperation in its pep at the last football game. Let's get behind the team and give them our undivided support." —"Bo" Sipes, "Doc" Wilson, and "Muscle" Neil.

"The students' pep showed up on the football field," John Workman.

Larmer said: "Well, let's see. I was there one-half and several of us became disgusted with the pep, so went to town."

"The little bunch from Peru made more noise than the entire student body," Gladys Graham.

And that isn't all. While on the west side of the field, we heard only 4 yells from the Bearcat rooters all evening. Get behind your team.

Name Yell Leaders; Now In Training

Students of the College began pep activities in earnest Friday morning when Dean Miller, president of the Student Senate, called a special meeting of the student body to elect yell leaders.

Nominations from the floor came thick and fast, but there was no trouble in deciding the winners, as freshmen voted almost solidly for their own classmen.

Those finally elected were: Verne Campbell, of Tarkio; Dale

With this issue of THE NORTHWEST MISSOURIAN, the journal starts the new year with a new editorial staff, and with complete reorganization. About twenty contributors—members of the College Press Club—possess the usual hopes and ambitions which attend the advent of an enthusiastic organization, and appear willing to make the organ this year one of the best in the history of the College.

Everyone who has anything to do with THE NORTHWEST MISSOURIAN is putting forth every effort to make the official organ of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College a success. The staff reporters, though fewer in number than last year, seem able to handle their assignments in a most capable manner, and are most optimistic as to the outlook for THE MISSOURIAN for the ensuing year.

Various activities of the College—scholastically, socially, athletically—make possible a great amount and variety of news to be covered by members of the College journalism club. Each week, there will be numerous articles to be written on these activities.

Every reporter on the staff is working for the mutual benefit of the College, and in order to make every one of his stories the success it should be, it will require the cooperation of every person interviewed. The sincere appreciation for the friendly cooperation already shown by everyone interviewed is extended by members of the Press Club.

And so, THE NORTHWEST MISSOURIAN makes its 1935 debut.

PROSPERITY

In the last few years, there have been many words exchanged concerning the return of prosperity to different industries and institutions within the great country in which we live. Some of these words have indicated that "good times" are returning to a great extent in some parts, and in other parts, not so extensively.

Nevertheless, it is an undisputed fact that prosperity is returning to a certain extent in all parts of the nation. Smoke is again pouring forth from factory chimneys long smokeless; men are returning to work in increasing numbers; and there is a general feeling of better times over the entire country.

In cities and small towns, business institutions are reporting substantial increases in trade for a certain month over that month the year before—and each month seems to reveal these increases. Railroad passenger and freight traffic, from observation and statistics, is increasing, as is the traffic in other service institutions in the United States.

And now, to bring the idea of increasing prosperity close to home—in fact, to our own institution, the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College. This year, the attendance at the College is the largest in several years. In last year's freshman class, the number of men and women was about 250; in this year's class alone, the number is about 350—an increase of approximately 100 students in one year.

Considering the increase on the College roll, let us consider an element that has been aiding the cause of returning prosperity—student government aid. This year there are fewer students on relief than in 1934-35. The National Youth Administration makes less remuneration to the cause of student aid in the state than did the Federal Emergency Administration last year. —But in view of the matter of fewer opportunities for students to receive government jobs this year, the student body grows.

Is this not a sign of certain prosperity close to home? —F. S.

Writing in the October issue of McCall's magazine, Maxine Davis, well-known Washington correspondent, discusses one of the most perplexing problems of the present social order,—the millions of workless young men and women "whom nobody wants."

Until those in charge of government and economic and social betterment can point to this situation as adequately met, it is idle to talk of returning prosperity or good times. Read these paragraphs from Miss Davis's article, written after a careful study of existing conditions:

"In the United States we have our vast legion of youth that nobody wants. We have 21 million boys and girls between 16 and 24. Of the 16 million between 18 and 25, one and a half million are still in school. Three and a half million are girls, married, and theoretically settled for life. Of the 11 million others, about three million are unemployed. We have no way of knowing how many of the remainder are young men and women with slim part time jobs, or engaged in occupations far from those their education led them to expect or are idle in homes not counted in these bureau of labor statistics estimates.

"There they are: legions of young people taught to believe that education and hard work were the Open Sesame to homes of their own, to respectable jobs secured by industry and reliability, and to honored places in the eyes of their fellow men—discovering today that they have been betrayed at best by half-truths, at worst by a fairy tale with no more substance than Santa Claus.

"These young folks seem singularly lacking in any special sense of community responsibility in any respect. They feel, somehow, that the world as it is has been created by their elders; that it is 'not their baby.' In this detachment may lie the seeds of a situation far more dangerous than an active desire to effect change.

"What will happen if so many of these boys and girls spend another 10 years wiping windshields and delivering toothpaste. I have scarcely the temerity to predict whether they will be merely a lost generation, or whether some leader will sound a bugle note that will rally them to his standard, remains to be seen." —E. H.

FIGHT AGAINST COLDS

At this time of year, many people are sniffling and coughing with one of those common maladies, known as a cold. Most of these colds are caused from some form of overdone exposure.

Anyone will say that nothing could be worse than a "summer cold," and that they surely wish they could rid themselves of that malady. After "taking" cold, it is quite difficult to "throw it off," but the thing to consider, is to keep from becoming a subject to that form of illness.

Dr. F. R. Anthony, the College physician, comes to the rescue with a few simple precautions against colds. Dr. Anthony says that a cold is only a symptom, and that one does not catch a cold unless his resistance is below par.

One of the most effective ways to keep from becoming a subject of a cold is to keep regular. Regular hours, regular sleep, regular meals, regular diet, etc., are the most effective ways to avoid a cold.

There are about twenty different varieties of colds, Dr. Anthony reports—the first variety being congestion. Dr. Anthony's advice as to congestion is to take brisk exercises. The second variety of colds is a stage of actual infection, and in this case, there is one short method of cure—go to bed and stay there until the fever is gone. Rest gives nature a chance to do her work toward chasing a cold from the system.

A Foundation for Business

By W. S. FARISH
Chairman of the Board, Standard Oil Company (N. J.)

"You raise an interesting and important question when you ask what aims or objectives should be emphasized in the schools and colleges of the United States.

Here in New York we have seen a great many skyscrapers grow up in the past ten years or so. They vary in architecture from classical to ultra-modern. But the foundations are pretty much the same. Contractors still have to blast down into the earth and lay the rough, homely stone, steel and concrete which form the base of the skyscraper, then raise the steel framework before they can work on the marble and friezes and interior murals which decorate the building. The passer-by may never see what a foundation looks like. But every builder has to learn that as an ABC, for his whole structure rests on it.

I think we have been forgetting about foundations in our educational work, paying too much attention to "gingerbread," as the architects call it.

After the war, as you know, we had a wave of "modernism." The style was to label "out of date" and "old-fashioned" anything not a contemporary creation. The fundamental lessons of life, the solid, homely principles which were bred into us as children and upon which as a solid foundation all our beliefs and actions as mature men and women were grounded, were jettisoned in many of our schools and colleges in favor of "modern psychology" and "advanced" theories of life, religion and economics. We are experiencing the fruits of that educational trend in some of the ill-considered, unsound and impracticable proposals being advanced today.

It is my conviction that the two most useful services which our schools can perform are to ground the incoming generation in fundamentals and to teach them to think.

I'd like to set down a few of those fundamentals here. I believe——in the principles of individual initiative, stimulated by the profit motive and free from regimentation, upon which our country was built and which were embodied in the Constitution and Bill of Rights;

—that the home and family are the foundations of the State and that our children should be taught to respect them;

—in church membership and conservative living;

—in the homely virtues of self-denial, thrift and self-control;

—that the business of running the State should be considered as great and honorable a career as engineering, medicine or law, and that our young people should be trained in the science of government;

—that we shall never have thoroughly competent government or a bench completely free from corruption until our judges are appointed for life and not dependent upon a political machine for re-election, and our legislators chosen from those who are trained for the responsibility of governing and inculcated with the constitutional and moral principles according to which the American people have indicated that they wish to be governed.

I believe that the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule are as changeless as truth itself—that they and the other fundamentals of living which I have attempted to describe above are just as true today as they were nineteen centuries ago and will be centuries hence.

We all know that as the college graduate steps off the campus into the real battle of life he is going to run into a world of competition, selfishness and disillusionment, a world in which too often there are few principles, too much loose thinking and hasty conclusions without regard to the facts.

I believe our institutions of learning could perform no greater service for the country than to build under the feet of the men and women of tomorrow a solid foundation of unassailable truth upon which they can erect their superstructure as changing times and conditions may suggest—to teach them the value of time in settling human problems, the habit of getting the facts first and then thinking things through."

Two New Preachers to Maryville Pulpits

College church-goers have been pleased to hear that Dr. W. S. Insley has been chosen to fill the vacancy at the Presbyterian church left by Rev. Panhorst's resignation this summer. Dr. Insley comes from Shenandoah, Iowa, where he has been pastor for the last six years.

He is especially interested in young people's work and his endless enthusiasm will add much to interest in that line. He is a fine speaker and is delighted to come into a college community. His son, Marion, plans to enter college the winter quarter.

The new pastor for the M. E. Church, South, that was appointed by the Missouri Conference is Rev. C. W. Griffin, who comes from the Arizona conference. Rev. Griffin is a middle-aged man, is married and has four children—one old enough for college. He takes charge as soon as possible.

He comes to Maryville to succeed Rev. H. D. Thompson, who for seven years has been pastor of the M. E. Church, South. Rev. Thompson since coming to Maryville has made a splendid record and has been very active in the Maryville Ministerial Alliance.

Roy Ferguson Accepts Place at the College

Had Been Director of Adult Educational Work, Which Was Discontinued First of This Month

In order to become assistant business manager of the College, Mr. Roy Ferguson, formerly of Burlington Junction, is resigning his position as state director of the adult education work under the Missouri Reconstruction Commission, according to recent news reports from Jefferson City.

Mr. Ferguson will act as assistant to Mr. W. A. Rickenbrode, present business manager. Duties which Mr. Ferguson will have, according to President Uel W. Lamkin, are those which Mr. Stephen G. LaMar had in former years, such as being in charge of general outside advertising, having charge of College athletic finances, conducting the business side connected with all entertainment projects, and establishing relations with adult education classes in the district when the classes are resumed.

Mr. Ferguson attended the College, and graduated from this institution in 1931, having majored in business administration, and minored in economics. For the past two years he has been in charge of the Missouri Reconstruction and Finance Commission in Jefferson City. Before accepting this position, Mr. Ferguson had taught school for several years, his last years being in the public school system of Jefferson City.

After the adult education program in Missouri had been discontinued temporarily because of lack of funds, Mr. Ferguson announced in Jefferson City that he was accepting the position of assistant business manager of the College. Russel Noblet, another graduate of the College, will wind up the affairs of the department as acting director.

Mr. Ferguson is expected in Maryville at an early date.

Dizzy Dissertation

(On trying to get my ticket for a Shirley Temple show).

By HELEN KRAMER

There must be something to this Shirley Temple. I'll bet there hasn't been another such crowd in the United States since the discovery of gold in the Klondike.

I've been waiting here so long I've seen three different shifts of ticket girls go on duty and the last one is beginning to look as though she'd worked overtime what with the mills and all. I ought to have made some progress by this time. When I first arrived I went to the end of the line without even having to be told and I haven't moved forward a millimeter since—on the contrary I seem to be getting farther and farther away. I'll soon be outside the city limits where I don't know a soul and I'm not even sure it's paved. I wish now that I had worn my hiking boots and brought a thermos jug of hot coffee and some penny post cards so I could let my friends know where I am.

I just happened to think: I was here before a lot of these people and yet all those who arrived after I did seem to have secured tickets and gone on in leaving me still at the end of the line. Conclusion: Somebody must be cheating. Such pushing and shoving and stampeding—a return engagement of the good old frontier days when men were men and women were overworked. (Feminine readers will probably add to the end of that last sentence, "And still are, too," but I'm not taking sides).

If people will tear off the doors just to see Shirley on the screen, they'd probably leave the theatre in crumbling ruins if she were making a personal appearance while Shirley herself would no doubt disappear in the throngs of souvenir hunters later to be assembled piece by piece and laid to rest in the Temple family's private nook in the cemetery.

I've been stepped on so many times I'm beginning to feel like the davenport at a family reunion where there are lots of kids without any home training. Never again will I press poor little four leaf clovers between the pages of our big dictionary because I know now just how it feels. I hope I'll be the same shape when I escape this angry mob—I'd hate to have my fall clothes altered. I like them just the way they are.

We're packed together so closely that just then when I opened my purse to get my money out, about a dozen people flashed me stormy glances and yelled, "Quit shovin'!!" I believe I'll step out of line and wait till the others get their tickets and then I'll be able to purchase mine in peace and calm. This is going to be harder than I thought. If you can't even get yourself located and collected all together how can you do anything without the common approval of the herd you are hopelessly tangled up with? I guess I'll just have to relax and wait till they all move on and what's left will be me. If I get my outfit all soiled I'm going to charge the cleaning bill to Shirley, because indirectly it's all her fault. She might as well pay for any ribs I get broken, too. Next time I'll come packed in excelsior. But I won't charge my watch crystal to her—that would have happened anyway when I play tennis tomorrow.

Poe's Pit and the Pendulum has nothing on me. If I get out of here alive I can write a story more gruesome than that and the Fall of the House of Usher, The Black Cat and Descent into the Maelstrom all compiled into one. (I wish my English instructors were here so I'd get a little credit for that spontaneous recitation.)

I'd like to see any gym teacher try to make this crowd right dress. That gives me an idea. Why not hire a commander-in-chief to come over here and shout "Right about face! Forward march!" and then while the rest docilely obey I'll sneak up and buy my ticket and suffer the consequences? But the idea came too late—I'm getting weaker and weaker. I can't stand the pressure much longer. Catch me ever trying to get into another Shirley Temple show! I don't like crowds . . . I want to be alone . . . I am not gregarious!

Campus Vogue

The smartly dressed woman is the one whose clothes are not only fashionable but appropriate for the hour, the place and the occasion. That one dress appropriately and becoming is as important as having good manners or speaking correct English. Often fashions which are perfectly acceptable on a college campus are not quite conventional enough for wear off the campus. A few requirements for smart dressing are:

A hat and gloves should always be worn on a city street. Tailored clothes are smartest for street wear. Gloves should be worn in a restaurant, at the theatre, and when you go to lunch. They are always removed before you eat.

Sport clothes are the ideal type for school wear. Plenty of sweatshirts and skirts, warm suits, and sturdy wool knits are the most sensible and the smartest choice. Ear rings, bracelets, or any elaborate jewelry are not appropriate with school clothes of this type.

The remainder of the school wardrobe should contain several

Stroller Walks

The Senior Class, its president, Luke Palumbo, and the committee in charge are to be congratulated on the success of "Walk-Out Day." One Freshman was overheard making the remark, "Do we have a 'Walk-Out Day' every quarter? No! 'Freshie,'" but it wouldn't be a bad idea.

Mr. Garrett and Mr. Dieterich are the culprits who hid the bugle.

Warren—"Why did you open the ice cream before Miss Campbell gave the order? Thanks just the same, I managed to get three cups."

Betty Marshall was seen refusing to dance with anyone, with the exception of Roy Brown—

Betty should be careful—she may be "Sued" one of these week ends.

The upperclassmen started the day off by marching the freshmen to town. But the freshmen, led by the indomitable Max Elbaum Richard "Texas" Keiffer, had the situation well in hand before the day was over. It was a wonder the upperclassmen were not having to "button."

Why weren't the fraternity and sorority pledges on the stage at the theatre as is the usual custom of "Walk-Out Day"? They must be proud of their pledges.

Davis was in the mood for love in the Country Club house shortly after dinner. Derotha, is that right?

C. F. Gray's amateur program was infringed upon by the professional appearance of Stark and Intosh. The gong should have sounded.

Was Billy Courter's "Flea-Hop" a flop or was it another one of the intricate steps of that fascinating dance?

Coach E. A. Davis could well look toward the administrative end of the college for some material for his football club. President Lamkin was seen hitting the line—the Bread Line—with Arthur "Doc" Yates leading the interference for him. It is needless to say they scored, and it is a scoring punch that Coach Davis' club needs.

Page Miss Patrick—Are you sure your preference for the Juniors isn't for the Plymouth.

After a weary afternoon of dancing, I shall attempt to get some sleep. I should have followed John Wright's advice and slept while the others danced, as he did. Did you know that, Miss Lewis?

College "B" Team to Meet Wentworth

On Friday night the B team of the College will have its hands full at Lexington in a skirmish with the cadets of the Wentworth Military Academy trained by Coach Leon Ungles.

When asked if he had picked his B team for the Wentworth game, Coach Davis replied, "I have not, but with the exception of two or three from last year's squad, they will all be freshmen, many of whom never have played in a college game." "I want to see how the boys perform," Coach Davis said when asked if he was going to Lexington.

The Bearcat B teams have been more or less successful in the past years against the Cadets, but the prospects are not so good this season. Coach Davis referred to the game last week in which Tarkio barely eked out a victory over Wentworth, and in that game, it was a 68-yard return of a punt by Quarterback Wolfe that gave Tarkio its only score.

Coach Ungles, who has been coaching in the Lexington high school for a number of years, went to the Military Academy this year. He is a former Bearcat letterman in football, basketball and track.

Astronomy Class Studies Sun Spots

Did you see a small group out on the campus Monday afternoon working furiously on the adjustment of a telescope? If you did, you had the pleasure of seeing enthusiastic college astronomers, all members of Miss Helwig's astronomy class. The occasion was the appearance of unusually large sun spots.

Clouds intervened, however, and the group got only a partial glimpse of the spots.

Kelly of the College Department of Speech. The contests will be held in connection with a national conference of the College World Peace Movement at the University of Missouri.

Two oratorical contests will be held. One contest is open to students in Missouri senior colleges and universities. Prizes of $50, $30, and $20 will be given in this division. Students in Missouri junior colleges will compete in a separate contest, with prizes of $35, $20, and $10 offered as the awards.

Students entering the oratorical contests must choose a subject dealing with some phase of the problem of world peace. The finals of the debate contest will be open to students from both senior and junior colleges in Missouri, in teams of two. A silver loving cup will be awarded to the winner of this contest.

The debate subject will be: "Resolved, that economic boycott should be used against any nation violating the Kellogg Pact." All students interested in securing further information concerning these contests should consult Dr. Kelly.

LaMars Announce Birth of Daughter

Superintendent of schools and Mrs. Stephen G. LaMar of Bedford, Iowa, formerly of Maryville, announce that Miss Barbara Ann LaMar, their second daughter, came to live with them at 7:20 o'clock last Friday morning, September 27. The little lady, who was born at the St. Francis Hospital in Maryville, has dark hair, and weighs seven and one-fourth pounds. According to her daddy, she has seen enough of him already since she opened her blue eyes. She took just a tiny look at him and then shut her eyes quickly!

Mr. and Mrs. LaMar think that Barbara Ann will soon make a good playmate for Marylyn Jeannette, their other baby girl, who is now staying with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Dowden, on a farm near Maryville, and at the home of an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Barman, in Maryville.

This is Mr. LaMar's first year as superintendent in the Bedford Schools. Upperclassmen and former students will remember Mr. LaMar and his work in the College. He was publicity director for the College and circulation manager of THE NORTHWEST MISSOURIAN.

College Lads Learn About Corn In Field

The cornfield—that place of work, where even Carlyle could have found ample accommodation—this week was the scene of diligent efforts on the part of several college men. With corn knives in their hands and a strong grin on their faces, the college men attacked the long rows of tall corn stalks.

Danger was ever present to the men in the form of a wild swing with the corn knife and a consequent cracked shin. But they seemed to have plenty of skill for no casualties were reported.

One man remarked that he thought the work would grow old in time. "How long do you think it will take?" asked his companion.

The lunch table suffered a serious depletion at noon.

Program for Dad's Day is Now Ready

After Day of Visiting and Inspecting Campus, Guests Will See Rockhurst and Bearcats at Football

A definite program of activities for Dad's Day, which will be observed on the campus Friday, October 11, has been announced by Dr. O. Myking Mehus, chairman of the committee preparing for this annual event honoring the fathers of the students.

The committee urges all students of the College to invite their Dads at once if they have not already done so. Tickets for the luncheon will go on sale on the second floor of the Administration Building on Monday, October 7. They must be bought on that day according to Mr. Mehus, so that preparations for the luncheon can be completed. The price of the tickets is forty cents.

This year's Dad's Day committee is working hard in an attempt to have a worth-while program to offer the Dads. Activities of the day will be varied, so that every Dad is sure to find something to interest him.

The day's schedule will start at nine o'clock in the morning with registration of all Dads in the social room adjoining the office of the Director of Women's activities. After they have registered, those fathers who wish will be taken on a tour of the campus, visiting various parts of the Administration Building, greenhouse, power plant, college farm, gymnasium and other points of interest. Student members of the committee will act as guides. Those fathers who prefer to visit classes with their sons and daughters at this time may do so.

At ten o'clock, a special assembly for all students and Dads will be held in the Auditorium. The program has been announced as follows:

Music College Band Announcements

Talk Dean Miller

President of the Student Body Selection Varsity Quartet

Talk President Lamkin

Music College Band

"Sunset" Play

O'Neillian Dramatic Club

Pep Meeting

During the eleven o'clock period, the fathers will have another opportunity to go on a trip thru the campus or visit classes.

At twelve fifteen a luncheon for Dads and students will be held in Residence Hall. Special entertainment for this hour has been arranged by a committee in charge of Helen Leet.

Numerous activities have been planned for the afternoon. Dads are invited to attend classes along with students. The Departments of Agriculture and Industrial Arts have been asked to prepare displays of interest to the Dads. Those who are interested in sports will enjoy watching swimming, tennis, and other physical education classes. Horseshoe pitching and other games will be provided for those who wish to take part.

Girls at Residence Hall will hold "open house" from four until five in the afternoon. There the Dads will be shown about the building, and will have an opportunity to meet members of the faculty.

In the evening, the fathers will dine with their own sons or daughters.

The closing event on the day's program will be the Springfield-Maryville football game on the College Athletic Field. The game starts at eight o'clock. Fathers will sit with the students in a reserved section on the east side of the playing field. Dad's of the football men will sit along-side the player's bench, and will wear a number identical with the one their son is wearing.

Teacher Praises Work of College

President Uel W. Lamkin received a letter this week from Mr. S. Loyd Collins, superintendent of schools at McFall. In commenting on the large enrollment at the College this year, Mr. Collins said:

"The State Teachers College at Maryville renders a distinct and superior type of service to this great section of Missouri which cannot be duplicated elsewhere in the State. The future of the College is promising. Our teacher-training institutions give an important groundwork of very practical training which those preparing for the professions especially need. Northwest Missouri State Teachers College is one of the greatest educational assets of Northern Missouri."

Organizations Take Part In the Assembly

Organizations of the campus appeared before the regular Wednesday morning assembly of the student body on October 2. Dean Miller, president of the Student Senate, was in charge of the assembly presented annually by organizations on the campus, and sponsored by the Senate.

As the students entered the auditorium at 10 o'clock last Wednesday morning, they were greeted with strains of music from the College dance orchestra under the direction of Mr. A. A. Gailewicz. President Uel W. Lamkin then read from Psalms, followed by a prayer. President Lamkin then made student announcements.

Verne Campbell appeared on the stage with a new patented radio, equipped with television. John Cox acted in the role of announcer and the first musical number was a vocal solo by Harlan Corrington, "The House by the Side of the Road." The Howling Quartet sang "The Tavern in the Town"—and they were "saved by the bell." Chester Smith then played a piano solo, and this was the finale of the representatives from the Growlers, men's pep squad.

Social Science Club Hears Dr. Anthony

Dr. F. R. Anthony of the College health department spoke to the Social Science club Thursday evening on the subject of "Socialized Medicine." "This is one of the biggest fields in social work today," Dr. Anthony said.

He gave a resume of the history of medicine. "Socrates organized medicine in his day, and the theme of his idea was to do all one could for mankind. This continued throughout the middle ages. Men took the oath to serve mankind. Pasteur laid the foundation for the bacteria theory, which is: there are more bacteria which are our friends than there are our enemies.

"In the Renaissance period the average span of life was 19 years. Today the average span is 59 years. This has been due to progress in scientific medicine. Today there is a medical association in this country containing over 200,000 members, and these associations reach down to nearly every county in the states." "It used to be," continued Dr. Anthony, "that a man out of high school could go to a medical college and be practicing in two years. Today it takes 10 years for one to complete a course in medicine. The association accepts everything that seems to be for the betterment of mankind. New methods are not given out until thoroughly tried out.

"There are many quacks in the medical field who are interested only in the commercial returns.

"We have immunization which has eliminated smallpox and nearly abolished diphtheria. The state board of health in Missouri has played politics to such an extent than many doctors have lost confidence in it.

"Socialized medicine cannot be a success until we accept only research work that is being carried out. The medical profession is the most altruistic group in the world."
